Values

Beliefs

Norms

Table Of Content

- Introduction
- Norms
- Values
- Beliefs
- Difference Between Norms and Values
- Difference Between Values and Beliefs
- Essays Related To Norms Values And Beliefs

Introduction

A human being thrives on what he believes in. A community goes by what they think are acceptable. A society acts based on how they are expected to act.

In sociology, we call these as Beliefs, Norms, and Values.

Norms

- Norms are a fundamental concept in the social sciences. They are most commonly defined as rules or expectations that are socially compulsory. Norms define the behaviors that people in the society regard as correct, just and customary/traditional.

- Different cultural values produce different cultural norms. In most societies, norms guide the mode of dress which varies from society to society.

WHY DO WE HAVE NORMS?

- Help keep people polite and aware of others
- Provide order in society
- To preserve culture

WHAT HAPPENS IF WE DONT HAVE NORMS?

- Disrespectful of others
- Lack of trust among citizens
- Bad reputation within society

Norms – Positive Impact

They control the groups interactions

They allow fair communication

Help keep people respectful of others

Distribute Power to weaker members of the group

Norms – Negative Impact

Not having group norms causes lack of trust

Group becomes more task oriented

Fail to recognize and tap into one another's skills and experience

Lack of relationship building

Members' lack a clear understanding of their purpose within the organization

Values

- Talcott Parsons of the functionalist school of thought says that, "values provide a general conception of what is desirable and worthwhile, that they are fundamental standards of a given society and that they have a wide influence on social conduct and organization.
- By definition, sociological values are;

"Important and lasting beliefs or ideas within an individual about what is good or bad and desirable or undesirable."

WHY ARE VALUES IMPORTANT

- Practice healthy attitude and behaviour
- Positive social status

WHAT IF YOUR VALUES ARE TOO STRONG

- Flaws not accepted by society
- Stuborness

HOW TO DEVELOP VALUES / WHO TEACHES YOU

- Environment
- Family

WHERE CAN YOU FIND VALUES

- In yourself
- In others
- In groups of people

WHEN DO YOU NEED VALUES

- Everyday
- When interacting with others
- When representing a body

Values – Positive Impact

Values are the foundation for an organization's mission, vision, and overall business drivers, so we must:

- Clearly and continuously communicate institutional values to all members at all levels
- Enroll new members
- Collect feedback

Values – Negative Impact

Without clearly articulated values:

- An organization lacks direction
- An organization lacks a foundation for the work it does
- Outsiders cannot understand an organization's purpose
- Members do not understand their purpose as part of the organization
- Dysfunction can develop

Beliefs

- An organizational belief system embodies the myths, values, and ideologies of the organization.
- By definition, beliefs are;

" The ideas , viewpoints and attitudes of the particular group of society. They consists of fables, myths, folklore ,traditions, and superstition"

WHY DO WE NEED TO HAVE BELIEFS

- Foundation of Life
- Gives you goals
- Gives you hope

WHEN YOU DONT BELIEVE IN ANYTHING...

- Lost
- Nothing to aim for
- Disrespectful towards others

WHAT HAPPENS IF YOU BELIEVE TOO MUCH

- Disappointed towards yourself
- Frustrated
- Less experience in life

WHERE CAN WE FIND THE APPLICATION OF BELIEF

- Communities or groups of people
- Individuals
- Society

Beliefs - Positive Impact

"Beliefs and assumptions, established practices, skills and capabilities, relationships, and awareness and sensibilities are five elements of culture that influence one another and impact the success of an organization."

Strong organization beliefs, when pronounced and made visible, help to shape the character (internal) and the perception (external) of the organization.

"The beliefs ,shape behaviors and help individuals understand the organization."

Beliefs - Negative Impact

"Culture (beliefs, values, norms) is often so strong and so powerful that when there is a discrepancy between the current culture and goals of organizational change, the culture will win, and status quo will prevail."

Significant changes in the organization's environment are often ignored when the organization is too entrenched in its beliefs and inflexible.

"Culture informs employees of exactly what is expected of them. In a strong culture, employees waste little time deciding how to act in a given situation. In a weak culture, the reverse is true. The impact on productivity is remarkable."

"An organization's culture is directly related to it's effectiveness and has everything to do with its success or failure."

Difference Between Norms and Values

NORMS VERSUS VALUES

NORMS	VALUES
Norms are accepted standards of behaviour	Values are principles that help you to decide what is right and wrong
Specific guidelines	General guidelines
Behaviours that are accepted by the society	Principals believed by an individual
May vary from society to society	May vary from individual to individual
Ex: covering your mouth when coughing, shaking hands when you meet someone, saying sorry when you bump into someone, etc.	Ex: honesty, integrity, courage, kindness, fairness, and generosity

Difference Between Values and Beliefs

VALUES	VERSUS BELIEFS
Values refer to principles or standards of behavior; one's judgment of what is important in life	Beliefs refer to the conviction or acceptance that something exists or is true, especially without proof
Affect behavior and character	Affect morals and values
Examples: loyalty, fairness, courage, compassion, respect, etc.	Examples: lying is bad, God created the world, cheating is immoral, etc.
Related to day to day life	Mostly related to religion

Essays Related To Norms Values And Beliefs

1. Norm Violation: Our culture is ruled by these social norms. "Social norms are the implicit or explicit rules a group has for the acceptable behaviors, values, and beliefs of its members. Social norms are important because they define the nature of a group, clarify relationships among members, and express values

2. Culture Effects Values: These values are known to be abstract ideas that reflect a set of cultural norms, languages spoken, or symbols used within everyday dialogue. Thus, values are varied across cultures and reflect the instilled set of norms with which society feeds of The reason being, a certain group of individuals may gravitate toward a traditional set of beliefs while another group may favor modern, progressive beliefs.

3. Violation of Norms: Social norms are defined as "the implicit or explicit rules a group has for the acceptable behaviors, values, and beliefs of its members. "Social norms are cultural products, and as such we should always be aware of the local norms of polite behavior when we are traveling to a foreign, strange place.

4. Belief Systems in The Guardians: The beliefs and values people hold concerning the physical and social world are essential to self-definition and social interaction. Society can greatly impact the beliefs and values of people as the media, and social norms tend to revolve around those who associate with it on a daily

Essays Related To Norms Values And Beliefs

5. Social Norms and Customer Tipping: Tipping is a common social norm that offers interesting case study for economists to evaluate the true reasons behind tipping. Most economists argue that tipping is not economically efficient and consumers tip for psychological value

6. A Comparison of Marx and Durkheim's Theories of the Structure of Modern Society: Durkheim's emphasis of modern society was on the norms, values and belief systems that governed it. Religion for Durkheim was not divinely inspired but was simply a set of collective beliefs that shaped norms and values, norms and values that shaped collective beliefs.

7. Sociology: It includes both nonmaterial cultures - for example: abstract creations like values, beliefs, symbols, norms, customs, and institutional arrangements - and material culture - for example: physical artifacts or objects like stone axes, computers, loincloths, tuxedos, automobiles, paintings, electric guitars, hairstyles, and domed stadiums.

9. functionalist and marxist appr : Social order and stability is therefore based upon individuals sharing norms and values. Parson believes that Religious groups express common values and beliefs together. Religion has shaped our norms and values.

THE END!!!